Rosa's Law: Striking the term "mentally retarded" from federal lexicon

On January 26th, House Health and Government Operations Committee in Maryland gave "Rosa's Law" its first hearing. The law would mandate that the current terminology, "mentally retarded," be changed to "intellectually disabled" on state health and education paperwork.

Congratulations to Denise Cerreta on the successful One World Everybody Eats Summit in New Orleans last month. The first-annual meet and greet of Community Kitchens nationwide used the summit as an opportunity to congratulate everyone for risking, surviving and serving their communities in the most sincere, on-the-ground way. It was an opportunity to share ideas and stories in an effort to help the idea of a fair-pay community kitchen continue to thrive.

The goal of the project is to have these 5,000 testimonies transcribed from PDF into .doc in order to make a searchable, accessible database to be made public online on July 26, 2010, 20 years to the day after the passage of the ADA.

Mr. Dart traveled to all 50 states at least 2 times between the years of 1986 and 1990, documenting the struggles of people with disabilities to assert their rights. He brought these testimonies before Congress, effectively convincing our policy-makers of the need for legal protection of the civil rights of people with disabilities.

Once transcribed, these primary source materials will be used for disability history projects, contribute content for community engagement materials, and offer groundbreaking opportunities for our community to tell our own story.

If, like we do, you feel that the transcription of these documents is of critical importance to our community, please follow this link to start transcribing from your browser window.
