Maria - Against All Odds
Watch it here!

Maria Liaskou is 20 years old, born with cerebral palsy. In a city which does not cater to the needs of people with disabilities, Maria has managed to get more than just around. Her charismatic personality has given her the strength to overlook the discrimination and to excel not only academically as a law student, but also as a passionate competitive swimmer who has represented Greece in major athletic events.

3 Reasons why this is useful:

1) First-hand: Maria speaks for herself, no narration or voice over.

2) Informative: This video clearly illustrates why the United States should sign the International Treaty on the Rights of people with Disabilities.

3) Positive: Although her life can be difficult, she frames the bias she faces as lack of education, not bad people.

A shout out goes to Prism TV for showing such an innovative, international short documentary.
