"Dear Teacher"

September is back to school month, and in this edition of Trusted Source we highlight "Dear Teacher: Heartfelt Advice for Teachers from Students" from Brainhighways.com.

In this short video, a range of young students with a formal diagnosis, such as autism, Asperger's,

ADHD, learning disabilities, Sensory Processing Disorder, and Central Auditory Processing Disorder, share with their teachers the variety of ways in which their brains work. They explain the simple ways teachers can make their classrooms more tolerant of the means by which they learn.

THREE REASONS TO WATCH

PRODUCTION VALUE

It's simple but stylish. We're not distracted by color or lighting, and the kids are nicely framed. Good editing catches just the right moments and the pacing feels right.

AWARENESS

It's a gentle reminder to teachers, parents and staff that really makes us think about how much children know about themselves.

VARIETY

As a full-time teacher at NYU, I appreciate how the video brings up different learning styles for me as we adapt our teaching to digital natives.

There is so much exciting and well-made media about disability. The challenge is knowing where to find it, and how to use it.

Trusted Source is a monthly media recommendation that you can use in your trainings and classrooms, and that you can share with your networks. We hope you find these pieces as insightful and inspiring as we do.
