TRUSTED SOURCE PRESENTS...

KHALID AL AMERI AND HIS SON ABDULLAH

For a change, we're looking at a YouTuber this month. Khalid Al Ameri is a YouTube creator based in the United Arab Emirates! He makes content about his entire family, including his son Abdullah, who has been diagnosed on the Autism Spectrum. Often we see a mother caring for children with disabilities, so it's refreshing to see a father who is so engaged. We also benefit from a multicultural perspective of disability.

We know you may not have time for a lunch and learn video this month, so here's something more bite-size, and great to share with family, friends and coworkers. It's the perfect season to be reminded of the fact that we have more in common than we realize.

Khalid Al Ameri's channel is available on YouTube!

WHY WE LIKE IT

This is an intimate story where a father allows himself to be very vulnerable about his feelings towards his son. It's well shot with high production value, but it still has that personal feeling, like Khalid is speaking directly to us.

It's a short piece that can be used effectively in many situations to start good conversations about how parents feel about their child's diagnosis.

Khalid has many videos available for you to check out on his channel on topics ranging from his family and culture to accessibility in travel. They are filled with humor and he's a very compelling personality, a real YouTuber. Find his channel here.

There are many exciting and well-made films featuring disability. The challenge is knowing where to find it, and how to use it.

Trusted Source is a monthly media recommendation that you can use in your trainings or classrooms and share with your networks. We hope you find these pieces as insightful and revealing as we do.
