TRUSTED SOURCE PRESENTS...

Rising Phoenix (2020) is an extraordinary documentary covering the story and experience of the Paralympic Games. From it's creation in the 1940's by Dr. Ludwig Guttmann with ex-service members participating in sports for rehabilitation, to the financial catastrophe of the Rio Games in 2016. This film touches on the lives and inspirations for Olympians at the Games, as well as the coordinators who worked to make it all possible. Athletes speak on their time being able to participate and compete in the sports they love, and how the representation they received really can help to change the perception of disabled people in countries and communities around the world.

With the Tokyo 2020 Paralympic Games starting soon on August 24th, the world will once again be able to celebrate and embrace these athletes and their accomplishments as they represent not only themselves, but their countries and communities.

This year the Tokyo Paralympics will not have any live spectators due to COVID-19. However, the Games will be broadcast on NBC, NBCSN, and on the Olympic Channel so please be sure watch and cheer on these athletes from home. If you would like to stream online, you can find all the events on NBCOlympics.com. Full coverage from the Opening Ceremony on August 24th until the end of the games and the Closing Ceremony on September 5th.
